The Southern Cross Group is an international volunteer-run and independently funded advocacy and support organisation for Australians abroad. The Group was formed in 2000 because it was the view of a number of Australian expatriates that there was a need for an advocacy organisation which could actively focus on and work for changes to law and policy that negatively impacted or disadvantaged those in the Australian Diaspora.

The SCG's philosophy is that those in the Australian Diaspora are a fundamental part of Australia in today's globalised world. Put simply, Australia is the sum of all Australians, regardless of their geographic location.

If you'd like to be kept informed about the SCG's activities and issues of importance to Australians overseas, please complete and return the form below. Alternatively email our volunteer Co-ordinator for Canada, Brett Rueff, who will sign you up. Or you may sign yourself up using the button on our website: www.southern-cross-group.org
